

MESSAGE FROM YOUR CONFERENCE CHAIR

Welcome to Providence and the 2010 Conference! If you have attended one or more CFP biennial meetings in the past, you know this is a Conference unlike any other. If this is your first, you will soon discover the truly unique, collaborative, consensus-building environment that these next few days offer. Your Executive Board, all of the various CFP committees and the Local Arrangement Committee for Providence have been working hard over the past 24 months to ensure the foundation has been set for a successful Conference. How much this Conference works to improve our food safety system is now in your hands. Some of you submitted issues to be discussed at one of the three Councils. Some of you are serving on Councils and/or have been serving on committees. Some of you are here as official state delegates. No matter your degree of active involvement in the process this year, you can benefit from this Conference by attending the workshop, observing the Council deliberations, being an active participant in your Caucus meetings and enjoying the outstanding networking before, during and after each day's events. I have never left a Conference without new points-of-view and new friends.

Dave Gifford

I have enjoyed serving as Conference Chair and encourage you to get involved. I guarantee you will benefit professionally and personally from your association with the other committed and dedicated members who voluntarily serve this Conference. I am proud to be associated with each of you and look forward to a great Conference.

MESSAGE FROM YOUR EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

I attended my first CFP meeting in 1998 in Boston. Despite the feeling of being in the midst of a three ring circus, I was hooked. As I became more involved with CFP at the meetings in Milwaukee and Nashville, and participated on committees, I grew to appreciate what we as regulatory and industry food safety professionals can accomplish by working together. For example, Rhode Island was the first state to adopt the seminal 1993 version of the Food Code. Now, the Food Code has become the regulatory basis for retail food programs by state and local agencies across the United States. Just as importantly, many in the retail food industry have adopted the Food Code as the basis for assuring food safety in their facilities. Food Protection Manager examinations have been accredited according to ANSI-CFP standards, and are accepted throughout the country. Retail food safety program standards have been developed and embraced by a number of local enforcement agencies. These and dozens of other improvements to food safety have been the direct result of the work done by CFP members in cooperation with our federal partners, especially US FDA.

Jeff Lineberry

There are many people to thank for making this meeting possible. Once again, US FDA came through with a generous grant making it possible for many state delegates to attend. Despite the tough economic times, our sponsors really stepped up again with a new record for donations. Their continued generous support allows us to keep registration fees down and administrative support up. Our sponsorship committee did an outstanding job. The Local Arrangements Committee has worked tirelessly to make this working meeting very enjoyable. Lisa Wright, Executive Assistant and Eric Pippert, Executive Treasurer, have worked hard to smooth the registration process, ease access to all CFP documents and activities, and support the important work of CFP committees. Chair Dave Gifford, Vice-Chair John Gurrisi and the Executive Board have made my job seem easy. Most of all, I want to thank all who made the extra effort to attend this 2010 CFP biennial meeting. For many, it has meant personal financial sacrifice. Your support for CFP and food safety is very gratifying.

It's great to be back in New England. Rhode Island is the Ocean State, where the State motto is "Hope". At CFP, we turn the hope for food safety into reality.

COUNCILS AND COMMITTEES

Councils are appointed to consider all Issues submitted and approved. Each Council consists of 22 members, including a Chair and Vice-Chair. The affiliation of the Council members is established by the Constitution and Bylaws and the Council is assembled so as to achieve a balance between industry and the regulatory sector. Council membership also includes academia and consumer groups and Council consultants are designated by federal regulatory agencies. Council members are selected through an application process announced approximately nine months in advance of each biennial meeting.

Council I – has been assigned Issues that deal with laws, regulations, and model codes governing the safety of food. (Technical Issues regarding laws, regulations and model codes may be assigned to Council III).

Council II – has been assigned Issues that deal with matters relating to the Constitution and Bylaws, Conference Procedures, memoranda of understanding, program evaluation, education, training, certification and accreditation.

Council III – has been assigned Issues that deal with science and technology.

Registered attendees are encouraged to attend the Council sessions and may choose to move between the concurrent sessions consistent with the discussion topics and their interest. Parliamentary procedure will be followed during Council deliberations. Observers wishing to participate in the Council discussions must first be recognized by the Council Chair.

Committees are formed to carry out the work of the Conference between the biennial meetings. There are Standing Committees that report to the Executive Board and Council Committees that report to their respective Council. Committees communicate their findings in the form of final reports that are attached to Issues. Sign-up sheets are available in each Council room and a committee orientation is offered for members interested in both Standing and Council Committee membership. Standing Committee Chairs are appointed by the Conference Chair following an application process.

Participation Policy: All meetings, except Consensus and Election Caucus sessions, are open to Conference members as either participants or observers.

*Issues have been posted on the Conference website.
A limited number of hard copy sets will be available for purchase at the Conference office.*
