

2020 Conference for Food Protection Biennial Sponsorship & Donation Opportunities

The Conference for Food Protection (CFP) is a nonprofit organization established in 1971. CFP was created to provide a formal process where members of industry, regulatory, academia, consumer, and professional organizations are allowed equal input in the development and modification of food safety laws, regulations and guidance. CFP offers a unique opportunity to all stakeholders for the balanced consideration of Issues in a deliberative forum. The continued success of the Conference is a function of the range of expertise and the collaborative spirit of its members. The 2020 Biennial Meeting in Denver is expected to attract over 500 individuals representing all aspects of the industry.

As a non-profit organization CFP relies on financial support to sustain annual operating expenses as well as offset the costs of the Biennial Meetings. Financial support for CFP is available through Sustaining Sponsorships, and new for the 2020 Biennial is the opportunity to provide donations towards the costs of specific 2020 Biennial events and services. More details can be found below on both of these opportunities.

Sustaining Sponsorship: These sponsorships are intended to support the on-going operational costs of the organization.
2020 Biennial Meeting Event/Services Donations: Donations will be used to defray biennial meeting costs.

By showing support for CFP, you and your organization will receive:

1. Prominent listing in the digital Program Book and on the mobile app
2. Signs indicating your participation as a Sponsor
3. Name tag ribbons for all your personnel attending the Conference
4. Visibility - attendees will notice your participation again and again
5. Titanium, Gold and Silver Sustaining Sponsors also receive a $100 discount towards the Pre-Conference Workshop for each complimentary registrant
