The “Conference Developed Guides and Documents” web page is a summary list of CFP committee-generated content documents approved via the Issue process and accepted by the Assembly of Delegates. These documents are made available to any interested party via the CFP website.

Each entry on this summary web page includes a title and brief description of the linked document. Documents are currently listed in alpha order by title.

The narrative description for each listing on this summary page should be limited to 50 words or less.

View Description of Available Documents

Each approved content document has its own dedicated web page accessed via the “View Description of Available Documents” link (placed directly under each document description, as noted in the above example).

This dedicated page contains links to download the approved document(s). The format of this page is based on the complexity of information offered. For example, it may contain:

- a single link to one content document;
- multiple links to various versions of the same document (e.g., English, Spanish, PDF, MS Word or Excel); or
- a primary document link along with additional links to other approved attachments.

On this page, an expanded description of the document(s) can be provided (e.g., background, purpose, target audience). Reference to previous posted versions of the document or an intended review cycle should also be included, as appropriate.

There is no word limit to the narrative on this dedicated page; however, narrative should be brief enough to allow a user to view all document titles and links without excessive scrolling.

Beginning with documents approved at the 2020 Biennial Meeting, each posting will also include the name of the committee charged with creating the document(s) and the Issue number granting approval of the document(s).

The purpose of enhancing the descriptive information for Conference-developed guidance documents is to help make the CFP website more informative and user-friendly.

See reverse for an “Information Template” to be completed by CFP Committee Chairs when documents are to be posted to the CFP website. Please contact the CFP Executive Director or Executive Assistant with any questions or concerns.
